Call for Proposals

EERA, European Educational Research Association and the Free University of Berlin invite Educational Researchers to participate in and to submit proposals for the European Conference on Educational Research 2011, in Berlin, Germany. The conference theme "Urban Education" will provide a focus for the keynote addresses, for other invited events such as the EERJ Roundtable and may also be taken as a reference within the conference sessions organised by the EERA networks. However, proposals for contributions are welcome from all fields of educational research. Participants are invited to hand in up to two abstracts for papers, posters, workshops, round tables and symposia. All proposals must be handed in electronically via the online submission form. PhD students and emerging researchers are especially invited to participate in the Emerging Researchers' Conference by submitting proposals to the Emerging Researchers' Group.

The ECER is the annual conference held by the European Educational Research Association (EERA). It welcomes close to 2.000 scholars each year, representing views and research traditions from all parts of Europe and also attracts researchers from other parts of the world.

Please note that unlike in previous years ECER 2011 will last 3.5 days instead of 3 and will start on Tuesday, 13 September at noon.

CONFERENCE THEME: URBAN EDUCATION

Berlin – as a focal point for the political unification of east and west Europe, with its historical contributions to the modernization of central Europe, as a multicultural capital of a European state, and as one of the largest cities in Europe – provides an excellent location to discuss Urban Education. Cities are greenhouses for educational change and educational reform all over the world and also in Europe. Cities have always been regarded as leading elements in Europe; they are modern, progressive and networked. They are producers and traders; they are a medium for political and cultural development.

In history cities bundled the hopes as well as the doubts concerning educational matters. On the one hand cities have been appreciated as places of modern and urban lifestyles, on the other hand they had been suspected of bringing forward uniformed ways of living.

In recent times social change triggering educational reactions has been concentrated in city regions; national and international migration movement has focused on cities; and demographic changes have led to aggregation as well as disaggregation in the population's structure. In cities social, economic, and cultural diversity are challenges for politics, civil society, and everyday life.
